I have been a social worker at Seattle Children's for 14 years, including the past seven years in Everett. As a resident of Snohomish County, I have a deep understanding of the local community. In my current role at Seattle Children's North Clinic, I serve in the Neurodevelopmental Clinic, where I support patients from birth to age 21 and their families who are navigating developmental disabilities. My work focuses on connecting families with community, state, and federal resources and supports. Through this experience, I have witnessed firsthand the significant challenges families face in accessing services and the disparities in available resources between Snohomish County and neighboring King County.
I have worked as a Social Worker for 23 years, including 7 years in Snohomish County. I am involved with the North Sound Accountable Community of Health (ACH), as a community partner, and have partnered with agencies that serve Snohomish County residents, including Child Strive, KidVantage, DDA, ESIT, and ARC of Snohomish County. I have been on the planning committee for the annual Duncan Seminar, which is for professionals who care for children with disabilities, sponsored by Seattle Children's and the Duncan Family.
