

Rosanna Brown

I am a professionally licensed civil engineer with 15 years of experience in Land Development, more specifically commercial – office and medical facilities, assisted care facilities, and high-density residential projects such as mixed-use apartments, and townhome projects. As a project manager, I lead small design teams that specialize in site layout, grading, stormwater management, and utility design. My project responsibilities include coordinating design plans and submittal packages, project management, and construction coordination. I strive to work efficiently all while meeting each project's unique objectives and establishing a strong working relationship with clients, local jurisdictions, and contractors.

My experience in land development throughout the Puget Sound region provides first-hand knowledge of the differing development codes, and design standards how they influence growth in their County and region. I believe I can provide an honest opinion and sound recommendations to the Council on topics that come before the Planning Commission. I hope to contribute by leveraging my knowledge and understanding of current codes to improve the County's development policies and regulations for the betterment of the County.

I've been a resident of unincorporated Snohomish County, outskirts of Monroe, for 10 years. I've established roots in the county and love to support local businesses. I'm the mother of two boys, who prioritizes a healthy life / work balance, and understands commuting out of county for work.