BACKGROUND / INTRODUCTION TO THE DRC

The Dispute Resolution Center of Snohomish, Island, and Skagit Counties (DRC) is an alternative justice center with extensive experience as a mediation and training program. The DRC was founded by Volunteers of America in 1982 as the Rental Housing Mediation Service and serves as the Fair Housing Counselor for Snohomish County. In 1984 it became the first dispute resolution center in the State of Washington pursuant to the federal 1984 Court Improvement Act. In 1990 state legislation RCW 7.75 was established to provide a funding mechanism to establish dispute resolution services across Washington. In 1992, VOA service was expanded to include Island County and in 2009 services were extended into Skagit County. Since 1982, the DRC has been instrumental in the development of other dispute resolution programs on both a state and national level including recently demonstrating leadership on a number of issues that affected mediation throughout the state of Washington. Our 2022 focus was primarily on court access, homeless prevention and housing stabilization services. The DRC currently operates with a staff of 27 (Eviction Resolution Pilot Project) and approximately 45 volunteers who serve as intake counselors, conciliators, mediators, facilitators, and trainers. Throughout 2022, the DRC focused on maintaining online access to the courts at the DRC and through partnerships with Community Resource Centers and foodbanks where they have agreed to provide a confidential space and we provide the technology for accessing Zoom mediations or Zoom court hearings. We continue to create customized trainings to meet community needs which include a combination of conflict resolution and communication skills. This past year we delivered our 6-hour Trauma Informed Practices for Mediators online. We are charging $99 for this 6-hour course to keep this core training available given the amount of trauma all are experiencing in response to COVID.

In 2015 the DRC implemented only the 2nd known Homeless Prevention program in the nation to use Mediation by partnering with Snohomish County to provide Prevention Navigators to negotiate between landlords and tenants at risk of becoming homeless. We remain a strong community partner and continue to look for new ways to serve the communities conflict resolution needs. Our center was the lead agent to help establish the Washington State Supreme Court Eviction Resolution Pilot Program (ERPP). This program ensures access to rental assistance, legal services and mediation prior to filing an unlawful detainer across WA state. The Eviction Resolution Services will be available through June 2023. In 2022 we helped 21,344 households resolve rent related disputes before court. The program details can be found here: RCW 59.18.660

Mission. The mission of the DRC is to provide quality dispute resolution services and education to all members of the community. The center promotes, teaches and encourages the use of conflict resolution principles whenever appropriate. Services include: training and certification of mediators per RCW 7.75, information and referral, conciliation, mediation, large group facilitation, conflict coaching, restorative practices, and customized consultation services.

Qualifications / Certification. Mediators complete an extensive Practicum and Certification process in order to qualify as mediators for the DRC. The required training consists of 40 hours of Basic Mediation Training with an intensive written exam; 24 hours of Family Mediation Training or Community Mediation Training with a 4-hour court observation; and attendance at on-going in-service trainings. The Practicum program consists of a one year to 18-month internship program which includes observing at least six actual mediations, co-mediating at least 12 mediations with experienced mentor mediators, and successfully passing a Professional Standards mock mediation exam. Evaluation and training for mediators at the DRC is an on-going process of mentorship, quality assurance with both peer and client evaluation. Clients' complete evaluations of each mediation and the information is used in coaching our mediators to continuously improve.

Training / Education Services. The DRC has a nationally recognized training program in Alternative Dispute Resolution. Trainings include the highly rated Basic Professional Mediation Training; Family Mediation Training; Community Mediation Training; Large Group Facilitation Training; School Trainings; Conflict Resolution in the Workplace; Building Trust in the Workplace; and Communication Skills for Effective Leaders and De-escalation classes. In an effort to meet the needs of more of Snohomish County's residents, the DRC has developed products such as books and DVDs that allow individuals to learn at their own pace and at a convenient time that works for busy schedules. Many trainings are offered online via Zoom. We have added the 6-hour Trauma Informed Training as a requirement to become a certified mediator at our center.

Mediation / Facilitation Services. Overall, the DRC handles a wide spectrum of cases and works with a diverse population. Referrals come from the courts, government agencies, police, attorneys, businesses, schools and various other sources. The types of cases include family, parent/teen, parenting plans, neighbor, fair housing, foreclosure, homeowner associations, landlord/tenant, real estate, schools, consumers, property, employment disputes, commercial, organizational and large group/public policy disputes.

Court Services. The DRC operates as an alternative to the court system and provides services to District, Superior and Juvenile courts. We offer online/hybrid mediation services to the following Courts: Everett District Court implemented a local rule moving Small Claims Court at Everett Division to Cascade and Evergreen Divisions. We provide mediation services to the South Division District Court and Evergreen District Court every other week. We are at the Arlington Cascade District Court twice a month. We use a combination of staff; paid court leads and volunteer mediators to successfully implement the program which resolves a minimum of 60% of all cases annually. 75% of cases have been reported to not go onto trial when a 30 day cool off period is allowed after mediation.

The Superior Court refers low-income families to mediation for dissolution, parenting plan modifications and new parenting plan cases. Based on the success of mediation, in 2010 the Superior Court implemented "mandatory mediation" prior to trial. The implementation of mandatory mediation put a burden on the DRC resources as no new funding support was provided. With the pandemic, the DRC saw a drastic increase in families in poverty needing mediation services with little means to pay for services. We are excited the Department of Commerce increased core funding to DRCs in the 2023 FY budget. We hope to maintain this level of commitment beyond the pandemic response as DRCs will likely play a key roll in Eviction Prevention services based on the success of the Eviction Resolution Pilot Program (ERPP). We will be seeking legislative authority for local government to implement fees to support maintaining these serves.

The Juvenile court refers At-Risk-Youth, parent/teen and other youth cases to the Center. The DRC works to resolve disputes at the earliest possible level in an effort to reduce the caseloads of the court system and to save the time and expense of court. There has been a request from the Public Defender and Prosecutors Office to offer mandatory mediation for At-Risk-Youth and CHINS (children in need of services). The process needs to be formalized and funding identified to establish an impactful program.

Consultation Services. The DRC works to develop conflict resolution systems and grievance policies for clients such as: businesses, schools, universities, and city/county/state/federal agencies. Clients have included the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; the Federal Mediation Consortium, the National Oceanic Atmospheric Association, the Tulalip Tribes of Washington, the Washington Association of Realtors, and the Washington State Department of Corrections. To illustrate, the DRC customized a conflict resolution training that met the unique demands of Snohomish County Fire Department and the City of Everett.

I. SERVICE DESCRIPTION

A. Major Goal:

The over-riding goal of the DRC is to reduce conflict, strengthen the community and the community's relationships. We work with people in various situations and levels of a dispute to resolve their issues—from minor disagreements to the threat of court action, dissolution or homelessness. We strive to resolve people's problems at the earliest possible level in an effort to improve community and family relationships.

B. Objectives:

-Community Outreach: Information about the DRC and conflict resolution services given to community groups and individuals.

-Provide Information, Referral and Conflict Resolution services by a trained staff of intake counselors who respond to client concerns by problem-solving, conflict coaching, and providing information and referral. Counselors conciliate between disputing parties and schedule mediation cases. Counselors also provide information regarding state and local laws pertaining to fair housing, discrimination, landlord/tenant, and mobile home issues.

-Reduce caseload of courts & community conflicts by reducing the number of disputes and cases filed in court as well as by providing mediation services in the courtrooms. RCW 7.75 requires we provide services based on ability to pay.

-Assist Families in Dispute by providing education and mediation services to families in dissolution, for establishing and modifying parenting plans, parent/teen, sibling and elder care mediation among other issues.

-Assist At-Risk-Youth / Teens by providing mediations for parent/teen and family disputes. We receive active referrals from Juvenile Court.

-Provide Housing Information & Dispute Resolution Services we stabilize households by providing information about landlord/tenant and fair housing laws, and by conciliating housing disputes between landlords and tenants. These informal services were expanded and formalized under contract with Snohomish County Human Services to prevent homelessness for households 30% AMI and under. These intensive homeless prevention services allow 30 days to prevent or rehouse tenants facing homelessness.

-Provide Education: Training in conflict resolution and mediation: Basic Mediation Training, Family Mediation Training, Large Group Facilitation, Resolving Conflict in the Workplace, Building Trust in the Workplace, Communication Skills for Effective Leaders, De-escalation and Landlord/Tenant & Fair Housing Law Seminars. We also offer Restorative Practices and Trauma Informed Care Trainings.

-Provide community service opportunities by recruiting and training volunteers to act as community mediators (neutral third parties), to assist community members to resolve their differences at no charge or sliding fee scale, through the mediation/conciliation processes.

-Provide Rental Housing Mediation Service by having intake counselors available to Snohomish County residents for Landlord-Tenant/fair housing information and free resources such as mediation and conciliation which allows parties to resolve conflict at the earliest possible stage to avoid unnecessary homelessness in the County. Issues resolves often include repairs, mold, and relationship disputes with other residence or roommates.

-Develop Conflict Resolution Tools: by collaborating with professionals in the field to produce books, DVDs, and manuals that allow individuals with busy schedules to learn at their own pace as well as individuals to polish their skills. We now offer online parenting classes through Snohomish, Skagit and Island counties.

II. ANALYSIS: FUTURE MEDIATION SERVICE NEEDS

A. Overview

2022—COVID response continues through June 2023. In 2020 we moved staff to remote services and began transitioning all services online. This included coordination with Snohomish, Island and Skagit County District Courts for Zoom mediation during court hearings. Multiple meetings and practice sessions occurred all while training the mediators in the new Zoom platform. Partnerships with the National Association for Community Mediation, the Mediation Lab in HI and Resolution WA allowed us to quickly transition online with services and training. All in-person services are now available online. Transitioning back to in person services may prove challenging as our volunteers are often retired and many moved away from the area with the pandemic. They have remained available online but new recruits will be needed for in-person services.

The Supreme Court of Washington established an Eviction Resolution Pilot Program (ERPP) with key partners including Superior Court Judges Association, Office of Civil legal Aid and Dispute Resolution Centers, inviting landlord and tenant advocates to provide input into the program that will prevent mass eviction when the eviction moratoria end. DRCs will be available through June 2023 for Eviction Resolution Services.

We anticipate our focus of 2023 will be supporting the community with Eviction Resolution Services and other housing stabilization services. We are receiving calls from housing providers locally who are experiencing increased violence and conflict. De-escalation trainings have been requested and coordination with police relationships.

We anticipate our major service areas will continue and include: Mediation and Training; Facilitation Services, Fair Housing Counseling and referrals, Landlord/Tenant Information and Counseling, Conciliation services, Court services, Family Mediation Services, Homeless Prevention, Eviction Resolution. We closed our Home Foreclosure Mediation Program in late 2022.

The surcharge collected on District Court Civil and Small Claims filings has decreased from a high of $158,000 in 2009 to a low of $88,306.50 in 2022. We will operate on $140,000 in 2023. If DRCs successfully navigate the legislative session, we should see an increase in base DRC funding for services. We will return staffing levels and provide services responsive to COVID, housing, and reducing community violence. Free trainings will be available widely. The legislature has an interest in providing additional local funding options to maintain DRC services post-pandemic response.

We continue to see a growing demand in Snohomish County for workplace mediation/facilitation services and training for organizations of varying sizes which includes both for profit, non-profit and governmental organizations. We partnered with Leadership Snohomish County to promote these services on a fee-based model. We've received multiple requests from schools to provide Restorative Practices and Peer Mediation Trainings. We currently provide these services on the school's ability to pay. Other requests for services include Civil Dialogue Training and our most requested Trauma Informed Services for Homeless Service Providers. We continue to seek private market partnerships to bring free training to our community.

B. Specific Trends

Population Trends: Total Snohomish County population in 2010 was 713,335 according to the United States Census. In 2020 the Census reported the population at 827,957, a 16% growth. Some of the growth trends that have been noted for Snohomish County include a steady increase in population with continued influx of immigrant populations, specifically in 2020 the county reported 16% of the population is foreign born. Hispanic and Latinx, now make up 11% of the population. Our ability to provide services to an ever-diversifying population is key to our future.

Court Caseload: The courts continue to rely on our services to decrease their caseload which indicates a continuing need for mediation services. We provide mediation prior to small claims trial and resolve 60% of cases at that 1st appearance. The judges have reported close to 75% of cases do not show up for trial. Increasingly, judges see our services as an invaluable tool in providing effective services to the overburdened court system and community. Now that we are online, we predict services may always continue as an option.

Eviction Resolution Pilot Program: Currently under pilot in partnership with the Administrative Office of the Courts and Superior Court Judges Association to provide Eviction Resolution Services including conciliation, connection to COVID rent assistance, mediation, and referral to legal services (Right to Counsel) to resolve unpaid rent disputes due to the pandemic. This program unsets June 30, 2023.

Family Court Mediation: In 2010, Snohomish County Superior Court implements Mandatory Mediation for all dissolutions with children. No funding for DRC was identified; our caseload increased from 100 cases annually to 300 cases annually. We have carried this unfunded mandate for as long as we can. A majority of our clients are the lowest income Pro Se litigants in our community. As mandated by RCW 7.75 we provided services based on what each person can pay. Most pay around $75 based on HUD income guidelines. This has been a tremendous benefit to the community since it allows a separating couple a chance to sit down with professional mediators and create a parenting plan which supports their children. There are significant benefits to the courts as full and partial settlements (DRC settles 75-80% of all Family Mediation Cases), reduce trial time, saves on interpreter costs, and saves the county and community members money. With state capacity funding we have added back our multi-cultural Intake Counselor so families who speak Spanish can talk to someone in their native language.

Foreclosure Mediation: In 2011, we implemented the Home Foreclosure Mediation Program as part of the Foreclosure Fairness Act. Our peak caseload was a little over 300; today we average 40 cases per year. This program was designed with resources for the DRC. We are allowed to charge $300 per party. In 2022, we closed our program due to low caseload and staff training. Two Foreclosure Mediators are available in Snohomish County through the Department of Commerce.

Restorative Practices (RP): DRCs are being approached to bring Restorative Practices to our schools to address Disproportionate Discipline and other Social Emotional needs. We are in collaboration with Resolution Washington, the statewide association of DRCs and OSPI to implement a statewide standard for RP based on ACEs and Trauma Informed Care. In February 2017 the DRC participated in a statewide training with national RP expert Joe Brummer on a Restorative Practices model for Washington State that can be brought into any school system looking to transform from a punitive model of discipline to a restorative model. While no funding has yet been identified, we support all community programs where Trauma Informed Care, Resiliency, and Restorative Practices are being implemented.

At-Risk-Youth / Teens: The DRC provides mediation services for parents/teens as well as at-risk-youth at no cost to either party.

Housing Trends: Housing continues to be an area of instability in Snohomish County. The DRC has worked hard to establish itself as a valuable resource in stabilizing housing as demonstrated through our 40 years providing landlord/tenant, fair housing education, information and conflict resolution services. Beginning in 2011 the DRC is a partner in Snohomish County's Investing in Futures. In 2013, we worked in partnership with Snohomish County Human Services Office of Community and Homeless Services to create a Homeless Prevention Diversion Program. This program allows us to stabilize families in their homes when an eviction has been received through negotiations with landlords.

*Mediation is a voluntary process although proven to be effective in helping parties resolve conflict. As a voluntary process the parties have complete control over the settlements that occur in mediation. Thus, mediation settlement rate should only be considered as a guideline rather than a goal. The quality of a dispute resolution center’s mediators or mediation service cannot reliably be gauged on this indicator alone but can only be used as a comparison with state or national settlement averages.

C. CASELOAD SUMMARY REPORT      January- December 2022

Total Calls: 18,559 Calls/Contacts

These are the total calls/contacts received during the year.

Of these 18,559 Calls/contacts:

D. CLIENT SURVEY REPORTS

Procedures

Client evaluations are handed out at the end of each mediation session and clients are asked to fill them out at that time or to send them in to the DRC at a later time.

Evaluation Survey:

- 2. Did your mediation result in a settlement?*
- 3. Are you satisfied with the terms of your agreement?*
- 4. Do you feel the mediators were fair, impartial and professional with all parties?*
- 5. Did the mediators help you gain better understanding of the issues involved in the conflict?*
- 6. Did the mediation help you communicate more effectively with the other person(s)?*
- 7. Was the situation improved by mediation?*
- 8. Would you recommend the DRC mediation process to others?*

Evaluation Results

The evaluation results for the year 2020 were once again extremely positive about the mediation process and the service provided by the DRC. The results are reflected in the statistics attached below. Particularly, the majority of the clients were highly pleased with the mediation, the mediators, and would recommend the process to others.
